I'm Listening

1 Samuel 3; Patriarchs and Prophets, pp. 581, 582

Have you ever heard your mom calling and pretended that you did not hear? The opposite happens in today's story. Samuel heard someone calling him and tried to answer.

The little boy was an answer to his mother's prayers. Hannah had prayed for a son. She had promised God that she would give her child to Him to be His servant.

And so it was that she took her little boy Samuel to live with priest Eli in the tabernacle. Samuel was very helpful and was like a son to Eli.

Samuel became a joy and delight for the old priest. And Samuel loved the old man.

"In those days the Lord did not speak directly to people very often" (1 Samuel 3:1, ICB). But God would soon speak to Samuel in a most unusual way.

Eli's eyesight was failing. He was almost blind, and he really needed Samuel's help. One night Eli and Samuel had gone to their rooms and were about to fall asleep when suddenly Samuel heard a voice calling "Samuel!"

Samuel sat up with a start. A lamp still burned nearby. Did Eli need him?

Samuel got up and went to Eli's room. "Here I am," he said to Eli. "You called me."

But Eli said, "I didn't call you. Go back to bed."

Samuel quietly returned to his bed. I'm sure I

Eli called, he may have thought as he closed his eyes.

Again Samuel heard a voice. "Samuel! Samuel!"

The boy sat up and looked around. Then he scurried out of bed and dashed to Eli's side. "I am here," he said. "You called me."

"No, Samuel, I didn't call you," responded Eli. "Go back to bed."

So Samuel returned to his bed. I'm sure I heard Eli, he likely thought as he snuggled under his blanket again.

"Samuel! Samuel!" That voice again!

Samuel jumped up and rushed to Eli again. "I'm here," he spoke softly. "You called me."

"No," Eli answered. "I didn't call you." Then

The Message

*I will listen and answer
when God speaks to me.*

Memory Verse

*“Speak, LORD,
for your servant
is listening”*

(1 Samuel 3:9, NIV).

Eli realized that the Lord must be speaking to Samuel. So he told Samuel, “Go to bed. If he calls you again, say, ‘Speak, Lord. I am your servant, and I am listening’ ” (1 Samuel 3:9, ICB).

This time when Samuel heard the voice call him, “Samuel! Samuel!” he answered as Eli had told him. “Speak, for your servant is listening.” Then the Lord said, “I am going to do something that will shock those who hear about it. I will do to Eli and his sons everything I have promised because his sons have done terrible things.”

Samuel was shocked. He probably didn’t sleep much the rest of the night. In the morning he quietly went about his duties.

He was afraid to tell Eli what God had said. But Eli soon approached Samuel and asked, “What did the Lord say to you? Don’t hide it from me, Samuel.”

So Samuel revealed all that the Lord had said. And Eli knew that God had made Samuel His messenger.

God gave Samuel the first of many messages Samuel was to deliver to God’s people in the years to come. Samuel truly was God’s servant throughout all his life. And God wants you to serve Him too. You can be God’s messenger. You can share with others what God says as you learn more of His Word, the Bible.

S A B B A T H

DO If possible, go for a walk with your family. See who can hear the most sounds.

ASK Ask your mom or dad to help you discover who, apart from your pastor, works in your church.

READ Find a quiet place and read your lesson story together.

PRAY Thank God for the gift of hearing.

S U N D A Y

DRAW Draw a big pair of ears and cut them out. Write your memory verse on the ears. Don't forget the reference. Write or draw pictures on the back showing all the different ways you can listen to God. Put the ears where you will see them often.

DO Sit very quietly for three minutes. What do you hear?

PRAY Ask God to help you hear His voice.

M O N D A Y

READ During family worship, read about Samuel in 1 Samuel 3.

ASK Ask your family to help you look up the word listen in a concordance. Count the number of times it is mentioned. Look up one or two of the texts and discuss them together.

DO Write your memory verse in your own words.

Samuel saw evil people every day, but he served God no matter what others did.

T U E S D A Y

DO Make an "I can listen to God" mobile. Cut pictures out of magazines or draw pictures of ways God speaks to us today. Tape them to pieces of string and tie the strings to a clothes hanger.

ASK Ask your family to tell you ways that God talks to them.

SING Sing "Jesus Bids Us Shine" (Sing for Joy, no. 133). Then thank God for your family.

W E D N E S D A Y

SHARE During family worship, think of five or six sounds you can easily create. For example, turning the pages of a book. Ask your family to close their eyes. See how many sounds they can recognize. Talk about things that might drown out God's voice.

DO Together, write a poem, song, or rap about listening to God.

PRAY Pray that God will help you and your family shut out the things that drown out His voice.

THURSDAY

DO Before worship, collect four or five things that remind you of God. Put them in a bag. During family worship, ask everyone to feel inside the bag. See how many things they recognize.

THINK Listen to your favorite songs about Jesus. What do the words tell you and your family about Him?

READ Name people in the Bible to whom God spoke directly. Read about one during worship.

PRAY Thank God that He finds so many different ways to reach us.

FRIDAY

ASK Ask your parents if you can have family worship by candlelight.

DO Act out the story of Samuel with your family. Imagine what it was like in the tabernacle.

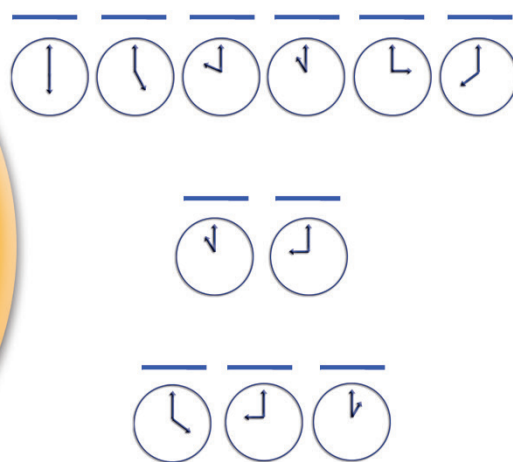

DO Say your memory verse together.

PRAY Ask God to help you and your family listen when He speaks to you.
